Red Dot award for COMPAIR PRIME flow®

COMPAIR PRIME flow® has been designated as a "winner" in the discipline Product Design 2023 in the Red Dot competition. The internationally renowned Red Dot seal testifies to the outstanding design quality of Naber's highly efficient air duct system. The jury based its decision on several evaluation criteria, including the degree of innovation, the functionality, ecological compatibility and durability as well as the self-explanatory quality of the system.

Naber's completely redesigned ventilation system for kitchen extractors simplifies planning and installation considerably compared to any other system. A key element of the new product design is the universal connector with double lip seals. These are used to connect the flat or round air ducts and the aerodynamically optimised bends without tools by plugging them together.

Thanks to the flex zone of the universal connector, the direction in which each air duct element is added can be changed by up to 15 degrees. Now even non-professionals can see that the system is permanently airtight. This is due on the one hand to directional arrows on the elements, but above all to the click-in elements on the connector. They create secure connections and give an audible click to confirm correct installation. Optional support bars make it possible to install the flat ducts in the flooring as well, for example in case of a free-standing cooking island.

Apart from time savings and safer installation, kitchen users benefit from the bionic design modelled on nature. Even with the cooker hood or hob extractor set at low levels, COMPAIR PRIME flow® removes cooking fumes very effectively. The noise generated by the kitchen ventilation is comparatively low, as is the power consumption.
